PLANNING PERSPECTIVES

ISSN / eISSN 0266-5433 / 1466-4518

Publisher ROUTLEDGE JOURNALS, TAYLOR & FRANCIS LTD, 2-4 PARK SQUARE, MILTON PARK, ABINGDON, ENGLAND, OXON, OX14 4RN
6 issues/year, English

Planning Perspectives welcomes papers that increase understanding of the institutions, documents, processes, practices and practitioners that have shaped the historical development of urban and regional planning. It features original research in manuscripts of up to 10,000 words. Papers of a comparative or thematic nature are welcomed. No historical period is excluded.

The journal is affiliated to the International Planning History Society (IPHS), the interdisciplinary network for planning historians worldwide. In order to raise awareness of current work in the field, IPHS has its own section in the journal, peer-reviewed on the same basis as regular papers but with shorter contributions of no more than 4,000 words. The section editor welcomes manuscripts on research in progress and historiographical essays, as well as personal reminiscences, accounts of archival sources or datasets, reports of conferences, symposia and seminars and announcements of relevance to IPHS members.

JAPA is interested in manuscripts that examine historical or contemporary planning experience, broadly defined, in domestic or global contexts, and that do at least one of the following:

- contribute to the theoretical and conceptual foundation of planning;
- improve the link between planning and successful policy implementation;
- advance the methods used in planning practice and planning research;
- explain empirical relationships important to planning;
- interpret noteworthy physical, economic, and social phenomena that have spatial dimensions; or
- analyze significant consequences of planning approaches, processes, and contexts.

PLANNING THEORY & PRACTICE

ISSN / eISSN 1464-9357 / 1470-000X

Publisher ROUTLEDGE JOURNALS, TAYLOR & FRANCIS LTD, 2-4 PARK SQUARE, MILTON PARK, ABINGDON, ENGLAND, OXON, OX14 4RN
5 issues/year, English

Planning Theory & Practice provides an international focus for the development of theory and practice in spatial planning and a forum to promote the policy dimensions of space and place. The Editors invite theoretically informed and robustly researched papers which raise issues at the leading edge of planning theory and practice. Papers on controversial subjects are welcomed and supported. Authors are requested to draw out the wider significance of their particular contribution and to write for a broad disciplinary and international audience. The journal's innovative Interface section adopts an original approach to stimulating critical and challenging debate through academic publishing. This includes promoting dialogue between the academic and practitioner communities, encouraging analytical reflection on practice and practical engagement with theory. Each issue of Interface offers a multifaceted investigation of a topical theme, in the form of a series of contributions reflecting on an issue from different perspectives.

EUROPEAN PLANNING STUDIES

ISSN / eISSN 0965-4313 / 1469-5944

Publisher ROUTLEDGE JOURNALS, TAYLOR & FRANCIS LTD, 2-4 PARK SQUARE, MILTON PARK, ABINGDON, ENGLAND, OXON, OX14 4RN
12 issues/year, English

European Planning Studies provides a forum for ideas and information about spatial development processes and policies in Europe. The journal publishes articles of a theoretical, empirical and policy-relevant nature and is particularly concerned to integrate knowledge of processes with practical policy proposals, implementation and evaluation.

Articles of particular interest to the journal focus upon specific spatial or urban and regional development problems, issues or achievements, as well as emerging explanations of new urban, regional, national or supranational developmental tendencies. Country-specific, region-specific or locality-specific issues are of interest, while theoretically-informed analysis is of especial value. Comparative case studies of successful spatial policies and critiques of policy failure based on in-depth study are also welcomed. The key feature of the journal is to generalize learning about best practice spatial process analysis and policy-formulation in the field of sub-national spatial development planning. Additionally, European Planning Studies features articles which focus on the functional dimensions of planning, such as infrastructure, communications, environmental quality, design, cultural, social welfare, recreational, housing, industrial and employment concerns of planning at whatever spatial scale. Articles which are concerned with these questions in an appropriate spatial context, given the scope of the journal, are of special interest.

APPLIED SPATIAL ANALYSIS AND POLICY

ISSN / eISSN 1874-463X / 1874-4621

Publisher SPRINGER, VAN GODEWIJCKSTRAAT 30, DORDRECHT, NETHERLANDS, 3311 GZ
4 issues/year, English

A geographical perspective has always been crucial to the understanding of the social and physical organisation of the world around us. The techniques of spatial analysis provide a powerful means for the assembly and interpretation of evidence, and thus to address critical questions about issues such as crime and deprivation, immigration and demographic restructuring, retailing activity and employment change, resource management and environmental improvement. Many of these issues are equally important to academic research as they are to policy makers and Applied Spatial Analysis and Policy aims to close the gap between these two perspectives by providing a forum for discussion of applied research in a range of different contexts

Planning Practice & Research (PPR) has established itself as the source for current research on planning practice – city and regional, town and country, urban or spatial planning. It is intended for reflective, critical academics, professionals and students who are concerned to keep abreast of and challenge current thinking. PPR has carried articles on many aspects of planning systems around the world. We are especially keen to learn about the varying meanings and impact of 'spatial planning' in different places; about why and how planning policies change and the consequences; about citizen engagement in planning; and about the costs and benefits of new tools, methods and technologies in planning. In all this, we value the international comparative sharing of research and practice that puts all places on an equal footing. We will continue to build PPR into a significant resource for practitioners, researchers, teachers and students.

International Journal of Housing Policy is a leading forum for the critical analysis of housing policy, systems and practice from a social science perspective. Our focus is broad, addressing policy-relevant research and analysis from all parts of the world. The journal essentially seeks to place housing policies and practice in the context of other public policies and to link developments in housing with broader social, economic and political change. We especially encourage papers that contribute to comparative housing analysis, however articles on national or sub-national housing systems are also welcome if they contain data, arguments or policy implications that are explicitly relevant to an international audience. Papers of both a disciplinary and interdisciplinary nature are favourably received, as are articles that critically address methodological issues.
